

Success Story 1

Ram Kumari Bishwokarma, a 70-year-old widow is residing in Sano Palati and have no one to look after her. Before lockdown she used to have a small stall of noodles, biscuits, toffees and vegetables and meet her ends. All her savings were used up during lockdown as there was no other source of income and had received some aid during that period which helped her sustain herself. She was in dire need of help at this very time as her work could not get revived because of second wave of COVID-19.

When she was informed about VCN delivering the aid, she was ecstatic thinking her struggle to eat two meals a day was to end for some days. She was blessing all of us and really happy to get the food that would last her around a month.

Success Story 2

COVID-19 and lockdown mostly impacted the daily wage workers who had to earn the same day for hand to mouth. Sabita Tamang is one of those wage workers residing in Barhabise with a wish to provide her children good opportunities. She and her husband were working every day to provide for their 3 children. However, the last year have not been good for them. Her husband caught the virus and recovered after facing a lot of complications, this terrified her family. Their work had just resumed but the second wave made the situation far worse. Mrs. Sabita was grateful for receiving the food package during such grueling condition.
